

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MEDIA CONTACT:

Casey Osterhaus, 206.264.4538
costerhaus@mckinleyirvin.com

McKinley Irvin Adds Associate Jamie Walker to Tacoma Office

Attorney Joins One of the Largest Pacific Northwest Family Law Firms

TACOMA, Wash. – May 10, 2011 – McKinley Irvin, one of the Pacific Northwest’s largest law firms focused exclusively on divorce and family law, has added Jamie R. Walker as an associate in its Tacoma, Wash. office.

Walker has been practicing family law in Pierce County since 2007. Her experience includes divorce, domestic partnerships, parenting plan and child support modifications, relocation, custody and paternity matters.

“Jamie’s ability to strategize and provide her clients with workable, effective legal solutions to their family law matters is impressive,” said Marc Christianson, partner in charge of McKinley Irvin in Tacoma, Wash. “She is a compassionate and talented attorney who puts her clients first from the beginning of every case.”

Walker earned a law degree from the Gonzaga University School of Law and her bachelor’s degree in English from Western Washington University.

Walker is a member of the family law sections of the Washington State Bar Association, the Tacoma-Pierce County Bar Association, and the South King County Bar Association and is active in the Pierce County Young Lawyers Association.

About McKinley Irvin

Headquartered in Seattle and with offices throughout the Pacific Northwest, McKinley Irvin is a premier divorce and family law firm, and the largest family law firm in the state of Washington. McKinley Irvin has protected the rights of families since 1991—handling complex family law cases involving divorce, custody and international matters. For more information about McKinley Irvin, visit us at www.mckinleyirvin.com.

###